

Spiritual Practice – Painting

When I retired several years ago, I wondered what God's will for me in this new phase of my life was. One of the ways that I thought I should use my time was to paint. Since then, each of my paintings starts with an idea from the Bible or an actual passage. I Google images and then put them together to reflect that Scripture. I use oil paint because it allows me plenty of time to think, pray and play with the colors. I called this first painting "Grace: You are the apple of His eye, even when you are not centered in His will." This is from Psalm 17:8 "Keep me as the apple of your eye." Now that I have done several paintings, it has become a way to share my faith with family and friends through photo books and cards.
